CBFA International Headquarters Relocates to Azusa Pacific University

At its October 2015 meeting, the CBFA Board of Directors voted to relocate its international headquarters to the School of Business and Management at Azusa Pacific University (APU). APU is located in Azusa, California, a Los Angeles suburb. APU is the second-largest member of the Council for Christian Colleges and Universities, and its School of Business and Management (SBM) serves nearly 1000 undergraduate and over 200 graduate business students.

The SBM has approximately 25 full-time faculty members, most of whom have been active in the CBFA. Part of the SBM's vision is to serve as a center for the biblical integration of faith and learning in business, consistent with the CBFA's mission "to assist and encourage Christian business faculty in the study, integration, teaching, and application of Biblical truths in service to the academy, students, and the business community."

Two members of APU's SBM currently serve on the CBFA Board of Directors. Dr. Julia Underwood, Professor of Management, serves as the CBFA's Director of Conferences; and Dr. Bob Roller, the SBM Dean, serves as the Secretary of the board.

According to Dr. Jim Dalton, Chair of the CBFA Board of Directors, "the relocation of the CBFA headquarters to Azusa Pacific University will facilitate a higher level of customer service to CBFA members." Dr. Roller added, "The excellent faculty and staff of the School of Business and Management at Azusa Pacific University is pleased to support the kingdom-enhancing work of the Christian Business Faculty Association as it provides leadership in the biblical integration of faith and business."

The CBFA's phone number, 740-504-6500, does not change. The new mailing address is:
